September 19-20 Confirmation Weekend for the Year 2 Students!

2025-2026 Unity Confirmation Program Covenant

New This Year! We have made the difficult decision to have classes on Sunday nights for the first two trimesters and on Wednesday when we begin the third trimester.

We chose the Sunday time as that is the same time frame when our Sr. High youth group meets most weeks. We hope this also helps make it easier for families who have student in each age group. Please help us by encouraging them to make it a regular part of their week!

(Consistent participation is what leads to deeper connections and a strong program creating a lot of memories!)

Class is divided into three trimesters. Year One kids receive a ring binder notebook on the first night of class. (Year 2 students: you already have one!) Bring your _____ and _____ each week. Year 1 students will want to have a New Revised Standard Version Study Bible ($20, take one tonight, pay tonight or at the first class....or use one from an older sibling).

The class uses a Large Group-Small Group format. Most nights involve two large group sessions with a lead teacher (Pastor Justin, Pastor Sherrie, and Michelle Aprahamian) and two small group sessions led by an adult/parent small group leader. Large group time will be mostly instructional. Small groups will include discussions, group building, and games. Students are assigned to a small group, which stays the same throughout the trimester and then changes.

Families are asked to help lead a small group 2 times between now and Christmas. Significant, non-parent adults are so important to our confirmation students. Every parent, please be involved! _____ adults are needed every week! Your participation is what makes this program work! Small group leader materials will be e-mailed to you prior to the class you facilitate. Remember, you do not need to be a teacher or have deep theological knowledge to do this. You do need an interest in and a commitment to young people the age of your own child. We don't put parents in a small group with their child. We really value our adults being a significant person in the lives of all our kids and we really value that our kids get to experience adults beyond their parents.

Commitment to the group is very important. Parents or students please let your _____ know when you will be gone, an email/text is fine.

Students are expected to attend worship on a regular basis and let us know if you'd like to be removed as an acolyte and trained to do visuals or sound instead!

What is C-mail? C-mail is the main communication tool between students and the program leaders. Students share something about their week and their impressions of worship. A total of _____ C-mails are due each trimester. To earn credit, C-mail must be filled out to the satisfaction of the lead teacher. There are 4 different c-mail forms – there are paper copies available in the narthex. You can also submit on-line.

And NEW again this year, if it's easier for students to type their answers using their phones in worship, that's okay with us, so long as they actually take time to say more than a sentence or two! Each student will be sent their own Google doc that has their name on it. The forms will be already included for them to fill out the answers. If they decide to fill a paper version out instead, their lead teacher will scan it into their google doc to help them keep track of how many they have done.

Servant opportunities. Each student is expected to serve others as a part of their confirmation experience. Programs and events that serve others and are not planned by Unity work can work for your second event, just be sure to tell us about them (volunteering at Humane Society, etc.) Students are asked to report their service work on their c-mail forms as they do them. We will also take attendance for the events we organize.

New Name - Same Great Learning Experiences: SALT (Serving and Learning Together)

In addition to Serving, we also want your student to be introduced to some of our Servant Partners and our Interfaith connections in order to help them learn more about the road that others have to walk and also the beliefs and rituals of other faith communities. There are typically 2 Sunday mornings where they learn more about the partner and then there is a time to visit. (If possible on Sunday mornings, that would be what we would do, but visits to our friends at the Jewish synagogue in Waukesha or the Islamic mosque in Brookfield would be on a Friday evening.)

Evaluating the Trimester. Faith is more subjective than objective. It is best learned by personal experience, serving others, and being part of a community. Still, knowledge of the Bible, church history, and the basis for our beliefs is important to a strong faith. Each lead teacher has his/her own style of evaluation (aka _____) We want to grow and we want to learn.

NEW this year! Confirmation Mentors. We are looking to create three opportunities for our students to get to know other adults from our congregation and share their knowledge with them. We have witnessed the impact of fostering relationships like this. IF there are adults that you have been struck by in terms of how they reach out to our teens or who you think of as wonderful examples of faith, be sure to pass their names on so we can ask them to consider this important opportunity!

Summers. Getting away is a perfect time to grow in our faith and as a group. Confirmation Camp is encouraged after Year One. The _____ Trip will follow Year Two. Dates are on the Program Summary sheet. More info in January.

Phones can travel with you but please don't use them unless we ask you to.

Contact us if you have any questions or to pass on any important information about your child!

Tips and Ideas on Leading Small Groups

General Advice

- The lead teacher will email you information on the small group activities you will be leading a few days before class. Read them once or twice in advance ... internalize the concept of what needs to be done. LET US KNOW THE BEST EMAIL ADDRESS TO USE.
- Become familiar with the names of the students in your group in advance. When they introduce themselves, faces and names go together more quickly. Take attendance on your sheet and turn in at the end of the night.
- Be confident and take the lead (someone has to and it makes sense for it to be you!) and project a sense of confidence of the small group plan.
- Regroup quickly when you arrive at your small group space. Introduce yourself right away, tell them what needs to be done, and remind them of the time you have to do it in... and then get at it. All that communicates purpose and direction.
- Keep moving! This age group loves to distract through diversion. Someone might pose a "deep" question or something off-topic. Chances are high that this is a diversionary tactic! Use your best judgment for staying on task.
- Keep an eye on the clock so we can stay on schedule, since large group waits until everyone is back.

When You Are in Large Group

- Sit with your group. As needed, help with crowd control.
- If someone is talking in your area during large group, don't hesitate to request that they pay attention. You can use a simple gesture, eye contact and proximity to the student.
- If they're having a hard time staying focused, feel free to rearrange how they sit for the second large group.
- If the lead teacher is not aware of the behavior, mention it at a transition point.
- You can participate, too. Listen to the lead teacher's presentation. Feel free to ask questions of clarification or to offer brief comments. Students are paying attention to whether you are paying attention or not. If you're on your phone during large group, it will send the message that they don't need to listen AND that you're not so interested in being there either!
- TRANSITIONS CAN BE TRICKY. Keep the group together when transitioning. Walk with them and keep everyone focused on getting to the small group activity and back to large group when you are done.

When You Are in Small Group

- Enjoy your group. Most groups on most nights are pleasant and make an effort to participate. These are great kids! Love and patience will serve you well!
- If a group is flat, don't take it personally. It could be them, it could be the material or it could be that they're exhausted from a long day... there's just no way to predict.

- Feel a sense of freedom to lead the group based on the situation and topic. In other words, despite what has been stated above about diversions, if the group activity is to have a discussion, you have complete latitude to shape it and guide it.
- Share your own opinions while encouraging individuals to arrive at their own. Ask questions to help them have a chance to share their opinions with you.....even if there may be a few things they aren't taking into account.

Some Typical Challenges You Come Up Against (and some responses you can make.)

- Kids who chatter in large and/or small group. (Direct their attention to what's going on in large group, separate talkers for the second large group, remind them of your task in small group, avoid shaming people but don't be afraid to call someone on their behavior...for example, "Name, let's focus so we can get this timeline filled in.")
- Kids who will test you. Remember, this is the age where they can do so much more, but don't have complete independence or freedom. They are told what to do and Confirmation may be one of those things they don't have a "choice" in. Get to know them. Listen for things they are interested in to ask them about. If you show them that you are interested in them and find ways to praise them when they do offer an answer or are engaged, this will go a long way!
- Don't let one kid ruin your group... Be bold and send the student off to the lead teacher or step out briefly and call the lead teacher in if you're having a real struggle. "Name, tonight is not your night to participate, I think it's time to go find (lead teacher)." Short, sweet and to the point.
- Put downs or other inappropriate behavior. Call it for what it is and ask them to stop right away. Phrases like, "That comment is hurtful" or just "I think you know that's out of line" are direct and keep the attention on the behavior. What you want to avoid is "defending" the "victim" of a remark. Things like, "I think that hurts Name's feelings," puts that person in an awkward situation and probably invites further abuse.
- Some kids won't speak up during discussions. Some kids are quiet, but active listeners. Not everyone needs to be a talker! Still, some kids would talk but don't know how to enter the conversation. Give them the chance with lines like, "You look like you're tracking that, do you agree?" Or, "I'd be interested in what your reaction to that is, Name." Or, "Can you think of a something to add to that, Name?"
- Some kids are determined to dominate discussions. Introduce "Mutual Invitation". This is when the leader starts with their thinking and then explains to the group, I will invite someone to speak next. When they are done speaking, they will call on another person until everyone has had an opportunity to share.

The big thing...BE ENGAGED. Most importantly, enjoy the time with your group.

"The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest." Matthew 9:35-38
